

NIGHT FIRE DESTROYS TWO BARNs

—JOURNAL PHOTO

Last Thursday night at about 9:30 the Marlinton Fire Company was called to the vicinity of the State Road Garage where two barns belonging to E. H. Williams were on fire.

Although arriving promptly and laying hose for several hundred yards from Stony Creek it was impossible to save the two structures which were loaded with 100 tons of new hay.

Your editor arrived soon after and snapped several pictures of the blaze. The one here shows the first barn collapsed on its mound of hay and the second barn burning furiously. Shortly after this picture was taken the firemen were able to get water to the small building, seen smoking on the right, and saved it along with another shed and several gates and fencing.

Loss was estimated at about $20,000.

Pocahontas 4-H Camp Ends Camping Season

MARLINTON, August 6, 1957
The 1957 Pocahontas County 4-H Encampment closed with the awards program at the last Council Circle Friday night, August 2.
The camp was attended by 233
4-H boys and girls and 20 volunteer leaders. This is the largest 4-H camp ever held in the history of Pocahontas County. 97 of the 4-H members were first year campers.

The campers were divided into the four traditional Indian tribes.
The Seneca Tribe with Margaret Fleming Johnson and John Davis serving as Chief and Sagamore placed first with the Cherokee Tribe led by Ernie Shaw and Jane Ruckman placing second.
The Delaware Tribe led by John Shelton and Judy Sharp and the Mingo Tribe led by Jim Simmons and Richard Barlow tied for third place.

Robert Hively received a $10 scholarship to return to the 1958 camp for being the most outstanding first year camper. Dave Shaw and Lucy Jane Cutlip received $6.25 scholarships for winning the 4-H Information Con-

IT'S OUR GREENBRIER

"Pollution of the Greenbrier River by tannery waste still exists, Dr. Allen E. LeHew of Clifton Forge, Va., wrote in reply to statements by Mower Lumber Co. official J. F. Weber, Jr.

Weber, vice president and general manager of the lumber firm, claimed that most of the complaints about the Greenbrier are from outsiders, and he urged them to first put their own houses in order.

The Mower official was commenting on a letter this column received earlier from Dr. LeHew.

"Nothing could be farther from my desire than to have a controversy with Mr. Weber," Dr. LeHew pointed out in his reply. "The thing that I am interested in is to keep the Greenbrier clean, and I am delighted that Mr. Weber is so interested in the condition of the river. However, I feel that I must reply to a few of his statements."

"I am not a foreigner as he intimates. I own property on the Greenbrier River as well as in the town of Lewisburg. My holdings are small compared to (the lumber company's) 60,000 acres, but they are important to me.

"Pollution of the river diminishes the value of my property just as surely as would a forest fire in Mr. Weber's timber.

"Mr. Weber's statements about a 'red run' and 'black run' affecting the color of the river are possibly true; however, they do not alter the proven fact that the pollution of the river by tannery waste has and does exist.

"It is evident that Mr. Weber is well aware of that, for he mentions the 'quite a few complaints from Raleigh County.'

It was the Raleigh County Rod and Gun Club that brought suit against the International Shoe Co. in 1946 in attempt to end pollution of the river. In that suit the existence of pollution by the tannery was accepted as a proven fact.

"Mr. Weber makes some remarks about the pollution of the Jackson River. Doesn't he realize that is exactly what we are headed for in the Greenbrier? Mr. Weber should be interested in, an he phrases it, 'putting his own house in order.'"

The Clifton Forge doctor said he believes that the fight for good conservation practices is a "last ditch fight" unless pollution is soon controlled, because eventually there will be nothing left to conserve."

The above article appeared in a recent issue of the Charleston Gazette in the Woods and Waters column.

Since this matter seems to be getting quite a bit of publicity in various sources (even in old Virginia where the "southern gentlemen" often look upon working people as "white trash") I thought I would stick an oar in for Pocahontas county too.

Just to be perfectly frank about the whole thing let's pair off the "villians" and the "good guys", like they do on television so everybody will know who to cheer for.

In the series of articles appearing in the Gazette writer's column it is evident that the Howes Leather Co. at Frank and the International Shoe Co. at Marlinton are the dirty owlhoots who are about to rob the poor defenseless maiden of her purity and unblemished appearance.

The "good guys" are, if one both these companies. We also believe that there are more real fishermen to the square mile in Pocahontas than anywhere else. It is also our belief that the allegation that the tannery wastes kill off the fish is greatly exaggerated. I have never, in the nearly 20 years I have been a resident of Pocahontas county, seen any evidence, such as dead fish floating by the dozen, that the waste turned into the Greenbrier by these tanneries caused a decimation of the fish population. I have asked other folks who spend a lot of time on the river if they ever saw such evidence and they all said no.

In talking to an executive of one of the "accused" companies I was told that waste material is NEVER let into the river unless there is enough water flowing to take care of it without endangering the fish. And the ponds where this waste is stored are never completely emptied except during flood tide. On the other hand citizens who live near the tanneries are the ones who should complain, if complaining is necessary, because we have to put up with the odor from these ponds while the tannery waits for sufficient water in the river to get rid of some of the waste.

A rather common

We don't complain and here are a couple of reasons why:

We know that the two tanneries in Pocahontas county employ upwards of 400 of our citizens and, figuring three persons to a family, that means that about one-tenth of our entire population is directly dependent on these industries for a livelihood. (It makes a person wonder just what the editors of the Charleston Gazette would do if their boy started a controversy that could conceivably put 24,000 Kanawha Countians on the D.P.A.)

Knowing that the "villians" in this story have no desire to harm the Greenbrier River in any manner and believing that we folks of Pocahontas County who see our beautiful river every day in the year have more at stake than visitors who might spend a few weeks a year at most in this neighborhood, we can only agree with Mr. J. F. Weber, Jr., in his advice to Johnson and LeHew, when he told them to tend to their own business. And harassing Pocahontas County industries is not their business—unless I'm mistaken.

On the other hand Pocahontas county will continue to welcome visitors who want to enjoy the unexcelled grandeur of our mountains—and rivers.

PVT. ACEIL B. RYDER ARRIVES AT FORT RILEY

Mr. and Mrs. Arick T. Ryder
Minnehaha Springs, W. Va.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Ryder

It is my privilege to inform you that Pvt. Aceil B. Ryder has recently arrived for training with our division. It is a pleasure to have him with us. Please be assured everything will be done to insure his good health, spiritual well-being, and success in training. Enclosed is a recent photograph which was taken after his arrival at Fort Riley, Kansas.

We are aware that the change from civilian to military life is a major one. However, we believe he will derive much personal benefit in addition to fulfilling service required of him as a citizen. He will have an opportunity to develop leadership, self-reliance, and self-confidence. All these will better qualify him to meet problems in later life. Most important, he will learn to work with other people, recognize their problems as well as his.

During training he will be busy, but he will still miss family and friends. Letters will be important to him during readjustment to a new life. When he does have free time, he will be encouraged to engage in various activities, athletics, go to the theater or work in the craft.

If you would like to visit him, we will be happy to have you so.

Pocahontas Fair Opens; "Saga" To Be Repeated

The 39th annual Pocahontas County Fair opened Monday evening amid a downpour of rain that was sorely needed, even on the fairgrounds, to lay a thick layer of dust. The rain didn't last long enough to spoil the evening for early patrons.

Today (Thursday) there will be judging of the Junior Livestock Show; Band concerts; the first showing of this year's edition of "The Saga of Poahontas"; fireworks and round daning.

Friday there will be group singing; a repeat of "The Saga"; Square Dancing and Prize Drawings.

Saturday will see a baseball game; a Barn Dance Jmboree, and more prize drawings.

Dr. Reed Davis And Family Leave For Guam

Dr. Reed Davis, director of the Division of Business Administration and Economics at West Virginia Institute of Technology at Montgomery for the past eight years, goes to Territorial College of Guam at Agana, Guam.

West Virginia Tech has granted him a two-year leave of absence to accept the position.

Dr. Davis, his wife and two sons, Stevie and Sammie, left Charleston on August 14 to fly to Guam, a small island eight miles wide and 30 miles long one of the Marianna Islands in the Pacific.

His assignment will include advising on the establishment of a department of Business Administration and will teach and aid in planning for the construction of permanent type housing for the college, particularly the facilities for Business Administration. This is similar to the work done by Dr. Davis in Nova Scotia last summer.

Dr. Davis is the author of several articles in Business Education the latest of which is a chapter "The Elective-Sequence Curriculum Pattern in Business Education" in the 1956 Business Administration yearbook. He served for the last several years on the executive committee of the Southern Business Education Association. Before going to West Virginia Tech he was an instructor in Business Education in the Marlinton High School.

100 Seats Reserved For M.H.S. Home Games

One hundred choice seats have been marked off in the center of the Marlinton High School football bleachers and are being offered for sale on a reserved seat basis for the season.

Since word has gotten around about the impending advance sale Principal Arnout Yeager has had many requests for the tickets. Several business establishments have bought pairs of tickets to be used by anyone in the firm who is able to attend the game.

"However," Mr. Yeager says, "I still have plenty of good seats left but I hope they don't last long."

"SAGA" IS AGAIN HIGHLIGHT OF FAIR

Although the script was somewhat changed from the previous year, "The Saga of Pocahontas" was again one of the highlights of the Pocahontas County Fair. Directed by Mrs. Ruth Morgan, this pageant has been the nearest thing in years to receive enthusiastic cooperation from every section of the county.

Two of the outstanding tableaux of the production are shown here: The Great Seal of West Virginia was a masterpiece of staging—correct to the smallest detail, the set shows Billy Clarkson symbolizing "agriculture" and Dave Shaw as "industry". The picture on the right shows Jean Stockwell as she portrayed her ancestress, Pocahontas.

BARKING SANDS, Kauai, T. H. Aug. 10, (FHTNC)—Two Marlinton men, Marine Pfc. Richard L. Jones, Jr. and Marine Cpl. Elzie Garretson landed on the rugged terrain of this Hawaiian Island early this morning as the 1st Marine Brigade launched Operation "Tradewinds", a five-day amphibious sea and air assault employing the latest atomic age concepts of dispersal and surprise attack.

The ground component of the Brigade, the 4th Marines, met immediate resistance from Marine aggressor forces as they hit the beaches by amphibious craft and landed atop 1,000 foot cliffs by helicopter. The vertical envelopment force was launched from the Navy's first helicopter assault carrier, the USS Thetis Bay.

Marine Aircraft Group-13, the Brigade's air arm, provided the 7,000 Marines with non-firing close air support and fighter cover as well as aerial transportation of personnel and supplies.

REMOVE STAINS FROM YOUR SUMMER FROCKS

MORGANTOWN—Sitting on the lawn these lovely summer days may be a good way to soak up some extra Vitamin D, but it can leave ugly green grass stains on your prettiest summer cottons, warns Ruth Knoch, Extension clothing specialist at West Virginia University.

Ordinary methods of washing or cleaning won't remove grass stain completely, she continued. This is also true of stains left by beverages, leaves mud, scorch, and perfume.

If you know the fabric is washable, first try rubbing soap or synthetic detergent into a plant stain and washing the garment. Or sponge the stain with alcohol, if a test on an inside edge of a seam or other hidden part of the garment shows alcohol won't affect the dye. Use alcohol diluted with water on acetate fabrics.

For stubborn stains, you can use a sodium perborate bleach. Sprinkle the moist stain with bleach, then gently cover the garment with a solution made of 1 tablespoon of sodium perborate per pint of water, and let it soak several hours or overnight.

If the plant stains still are stubborn, you can use stronger sodium perborate on the stain and dip fabrics that can take it into very hot or boiling water. Rinse well, and repeat if necessary.

You can also use a combination of two mild bleaches—sodium perborate and hydrogen peroxide. This combination makes the solution doesn't damage some strong Miss Knoch.

Dissolve all sodium perborate in a small bottle promptly before it soon loses the mixture medicine drug or sponge treatment.

Leave the stain enough to rinse it out plenty of water. Knoch. Take use the materials, then out the color. This requires application afterward.

Both sodium perborate and hydrogen peroxide are often used at drug stores.

Chlorine bleaches are the same type as chlorine bleach used on fabrics, such as towels, and "wash and wear" finishes.

Merle Wimer Wins National Archery Championship

Never before has Pocahontas county had the distinction of being the home of a national champion in any sport. However, when your editor went to ask her what she enjoyed most about winning this national event, she paused from her duties in the family jewelry store to grin and say that her big "kick" was when the news photogs took her picture wearing an indian war bonnet.

Winning archery tournaments has gotten to be a habit of Merle (Mrs. J. Marvin) Wimer. Just to she has compiled. She has won every tournament she ever entered: animal pictured must be hit in a vital spot for a good score. Here

Howard Barlow Dies As Result Of Head-On Truck Collision

W. H. Barlow, 82, of Huntersville died in a hospital at Clifton Forge, Va., at 2:30 a.m., Wednesday, Sept 11, 1957, as the result of injuries received in a head-on collision Monday. Graveside rites will be conducted Friday at 2:00 p.m., by the Rev. E. H. Flaniken in Mountain View Cemetery.

Survivors include his wife and one daughter, Helen, at home; a brother, Isaac Barlow of Huntersville, and a sister, Mrs. Harry Patterson of York Pa.

The deceased was a member of the Huntersville Presbyterian Church and Masonic Lodge No. 65. He was a director in the First National Bank in Marlinton.

Two pickup trucks were involved in the accident which resulted in Mr. Barlow's death. At about 5:20 p.m., Monday, Barlow and Cecil Pritt were heading south on the Browns Creek road in Barlow's International pickup.

Heading north was Gail Geiger of Durbin in a new Dodge pickup. The two vehicles met head-on just above Byrd's Place for reasons that have not been fully determined. The Marlinton Fire Company ambulance was called and, manned by Harry Hockenberry and Dale Curry, brought the injured men to the Pocahontas Memorial Hospital.

Pritt, who was employed by Barlow, is reported to have suffered a fractured skull and hip while Geiger suffered a severe cut on the head. Both are still confined to the local hospital where on Wednesday afternoon they were "doing very well."

Barlow, who was transferred to Clifton Forge Hospital early Tuesday morning, had been reported as suffering from several fractured ribs, one of which had punctured a lung, a broken hip and face injuries.

"Let's Understand Mental Illness" will be the theme of a community meeting at the Hillsboro Grade School Auditorium, September 19 at 8:00 p.m. Films dealing with mental health will be shown. According to a statement from the National Institute of Mental Health, Public Health Service, the number of mentally ill patients in the United States exceeds the number of patients suffering from any other illness. It is important that the public become better informed regarding the causes, symptoms and treatment of mental diseases.

This meeting is sponsored jointly by the Hillsboro and Little Levels Homemakers Clubs. Club meetings will follow the public meeting.

Cal Price Vindicated In Belief They're Still Here

Probably to the consternation of the Conservation Commission experts and a host of other doubting Thomases, the writer included, it seems that at long last the contention of the late Cal Price that panthers still roam these hills has been proven true. What is described as a real and very-much alive panther was trapped early Wednesday morning by Ed Buck, wildlife expert and biology teacher at Richwood High School.

Your editor was first informed of the animals capture on Wednesday by Bob McComb who said he saw it as he came through Richwood. In order to get the entire story we called Editor Jim Comstock of the Richwood News-Leader and here is what he told us:

"Ed Buck, biology teacher in Richwood High School and veteran outdoorsman, trapped the animal on Kennison Mountain late Tuesday night and brought it in to Richwood about 2:30 a. m. The animal has a big neck near the

"Ed Buck, biology teacher in Richwood High School and veteran outdoorsman, trapped the animal on Kennison Mountain late Tuesday night and brought it in to Richwood about 2:30 a. m. The animal has a big neck near the body and tapers to a sharp face. It has cat-like whiskers and big, cushion-like feet. The tail is long and tapering and not very bushy. The coloring is a brownish gray. The weight has been judged at 75 or 80 pounds. From the tip of tail to the nose the cat would measure about 8 feet.

"The caged animal, definitely described as a panther by Ed Buck and others who claim to know, is being kept at the Richwood Fire House where hundreds have donated $100 or more to the fire company for a chance to see it."

Comstock also told your editor that already the University of Pittsburgh has been making inquiries as to the possibility of their acquiring the animal as a mascot for the Pitt Panthers.

He also said he was sending us a picture of the panther for the paper and we are indebted to him for the above engraving. We also wish to thank Joe Shumaker for bringing the "cut" over to us.

Green Bank downed Franklin High School in the season opener for the Golden Eagles by the score of 38-0 and a spectator reports he believes it could have been much higher. Friday afternoon they will play host to the Circleville H. S. squad.

Hillsboro continued their winning ways by trimming the Frankford gridders 28-6 on the latter's field. The Red Devils journey to Lewisburg for their next game this coming Friday night.

Marlinton High School, recovering from the surprise thumping from Hillsboro the week before, played an entirely different brand of ball Friday night before a large crowd to turn back Class A Webster Springs to the tune of 19-6. To name outstanding players in this game would be unfair as it was truly a team victory. The Orange and Black will meet Crichton on the Rainelle High School field Saturday night instead of Friday due to a conflict in schedules.

Local Man Receives "Kentucky Colonel" Tag

Frank G. Holland of Tenth avenue, civil station master for the C. & O. at Marlinton for several years, has been designated a "Kentucky Colonel" by Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler of the State of Kentucky. A fine large engraved certificate proclaiming him as a "cunnel" was accompanied by a letter from the Governor congratulating the local man on his being chosen.

Although Frank claims he can't figure why he was awarded the honor saying "Why they only give those to people who have done something outstanding and I'm only a working man", anyone who has talked to this native of Eddyville, Ky., knows that he is the talkiest ambassador of good will the bluegrass state ever exported. To hear Frank extol the virtues of his native state is to be convinced that paradise is called Kentucky.

Whether the C & O officials want to call attention to their honored employee or whether for more mundane reasons the railroad's station buildings have all been shined up with a new coat of paint.

This writer suspects that the only thing keeping Frank on the ground these days is the fact that the St. Louis Cardinals lost their pennant fight.

Congratulations, Frank... excuse me, I should say "Colonel Frank".

New Manager At Marlinton Tannery

JOHN W. GREEN

John W. Green has been named plant manager of International Shoe Company's Marlinton Tannery, it was announced by R. H. Richards, vice-president in charge of subsidiary operations.

Mr. Green succeeds J. D. Schaefer who will retire at the end of the year following 33 years service with International. He will continue with the tannery as advisor and consultant to Mr. Green until his retirement becomes effective December 31, 1957.

Mr. Green, a 35-year veteran with International, was plant manager of the Frankford (Pa.) Tannery until it closed recently. Starting his career with International as a leather sorter in the tannery shipping room, Mr. Green rose through the ranks becoming plant manager at Frankford in 1939. He is a member of the Delaware Tanners Association.

Mr. Schaefer, plant manager of the Marlinton Tannery since 1945, joined International as a tannery clerk. He held various supervisory positions in the tanning field with International, becoming plant manager at Marlinton 12 years ago. Mr. Schaefer is Past Master of Masonic Lodge No. 127 and was Treasurer of the Marlinton Rotary Club for seven years.

Mr. Green's appointment is effective immediately. Although he doesn't expect to be able to come to Marlinton permanently until after all the details concerning the closing of the Philadelphia (Frankford) plant have been completed.

We are glad to report that the Schaefer's plan to remain in Marlinton as our good friends and neighbors.

The Panther Story

The Panther Story as told by Jim Comstock in his "Dear Subscriber" column in the Richwood
News Leader of last week:

The Panther Story starts as far as our part is concerned at about ten o'clock Tuesday night. Ed Buck knocked on the door and announced that he had a story for me. He had trapped and taken into captivity a panther.

I didn't know whether to put this down as just another panther story or not. Everybody and his brother at one time or another had seen a panther as he crossed Kennison Mountain. There were people who believed and there were people who took their panther with a pinch of salt. The late Cal Price, I knew, was the high priest of the belief that there were panthers in Pocahontas, around Williams River or in the far reaches of Elk Mountain.

Now, while I can take my panthers or leave them, I realized that here was a story. I have enough respect for Ed Buck to know that he would know a panther from a bob cat and I said,

"What's holding us, let's go."

S O S TO THE RESCUE

Ed said that he would like to have some woodsman along to help load the fellow on to his car. He said that he had been after that panther for a year and a half, ever since State Trooper Paul Kyer reported having seen a panther on Kennison, but had been afraid to tell many people more than Ed about it because people would laugh at him. So Ed, finding out something more than even he had the nerve to tell, set about getting his panther. He knew that eventually he would outwit the rascal, he said, and he bought a professional shipping crate and kept it stored in his basement until the zero hour.

That hour came this week. He went to his trap and there was this critter—Panther, and I'll take Ed's word for it until denied by some higher up authority, if there is such. The fellow must have been there for several days or something—I never did get this straight—and was in a rather comatose state. Ed went back for his crate, slipped upon the booger and before you can say Nimrod The Mighty Hunter Ed had the varmint nailed in his slip-in box.

And now he was ready to bring it to town and he thought the press should be on hand for the story and he was at my house for that purpose. He got on the phone and called Leo Grose, known as Windy, and asked him if he would like to come along and help. "I have a big cat in a box trap," he said. "I am much afraid it is a panther." Windy said he'd be "down".

I suggested that Sterling Spencer be called in on the affair and it wasn't long until Sterling entered the door at the top of his voice. "A panther? Shoot!"

The three got to talking in my living room while my wife made coffee. I learned the full significance of the discovery. It is like somebody rummaging through a book store and coming upon a dusty copy of the "Codex Sinaiticus" or like meeting Judge Crater in a Richwood pool room.

Why the last panther recorded killed in West Virginia was in 1868 in the Northern Panhandle, one said. Another said, "Panthers, pumas, cougars and mountain lions are all the same. I asked if the old time 'painter' belonged to the family. They ignored me and phrases like 'I saw one in Florida', 'I'd give ten years of my life to kill a panther and bring it into Richwood slung over my shoulder'. Bronson came with his camera and we left the house in a drizzle of rain.

modernistic carving with long black wires for whiskers. I jumped back. I had heard plenty about panthers.

Sterling told me I was crazy. "Why I wouldn't be any more afraid of a panther than I would a tom cat. They are the cowards of the cat family, and they only attack things that can't fight back. Like deers. Shoot, I wouldn't be afraid to walk right up to one in the woods only he wouldn't let me. He'd run. Of course, it's different when they are in a trap or up against a wall. They fight then."

Leo, if the gentle reader will recall, is the fellow who the year before shot three bobcats that were taking a free ride on a deer's back and eating lunch en route.

Leo drew back after gazing through an air hole. "It's a panther sure enough. I saw them on a snake farm in Florida and I took particular pains to see what they were like because I knew they would be found around here. John Wasselchilk saw a big cat up here the other day somewhere and I bet it was a panther."

Sterling said it was a panther. "I have seen them in zoos and this is a panther. I'd bet my house to nothing right now that this is a panther."

Bronson took a few pictures and the box was loaded onto the back of Ed's car and we went down the mountain to Richwood. On the way we stopped for a council of war, and one of the fellows suggested that Ed should put the fellow into a cage and show him to people. Maybe charge something and give the money to Bronson came with his camera and we left the house in a drizzle of rain.

The farther up Kennison we got, the harder the windshield wiper had to work to keep the windshield clean. The fog was so thick you could have eaten it with a spoon. I realized that it wasn't really fog and it really wasn't rain but clouds. We were up to where Kennison communes with the angels.

We turned off the road toward Cranberry Glades. In our car were Fred Ferguson, David Cook, Bronson and myself. In the other car were Sterling, Leo and Ed. Ed's car was ahead and it came to a stop, backed off the road, and we parked behind it. Our flashlights cut through the dark and a few feet away we saw a wooden box.

Through A Hole Darkly

We took turns at looking down an air hole from the top while somebody shone a light through a hole in the side of the box. All I could see was a head like a a snake farm in Florida and I took particular pains to see what they were like because I knew they would be found around here. John Wasselchilk saw a big cat up here the other day somewhere and I bet it was a panther."

On the way we stopped for a council of war, and one of the fellows suggested that Ed should put the fellow into a cage and show him to people. Maybe charge something and give the money to the fire department. The fire department is having its annual drive. Ed wondered how much to charge and wondered if a quar for children would be right and fifty cents for adults. Bronson, trust Bronson, said that ten cents for kids and a quarter for adults would be more like it.

Ed said that he'd have to take it up with the fire department members.

The big question was how to get a carpenter out of bed to make a cage, and some of the fellows came up with some ideas that sounded like they had been reading science fiction. Then one fellow said that there was nothing to worry about. Just go to Mansel White, the undertaker, and buy a rough box. "Put mesh wire over the top and that's all the cage you need."

is lowered into the grave. It was a rather eerie place with nothing there except us coffins, but we came through it. We took our sioner's room under the city cer was there and he was a life saver because if he didn't know how to do something himself he knew where there was the tools

For instance, we needed good strong wire to put over the box.
I thought chicken wire would do.
"Shoot, no." Said Sterling. "My solution. There was the remnants of an old fence back of the city hall. Sure enough, there was what we needed. Pickle knew how to cut the wire.

"I'll run up to Corner Pure Oil and borrow a chain cutter."

He was back in a jiffy. Fred and Ed cut the wire. Leo and sterling cut 2x4's to strengthen the cage and raised sand at Bron-their eyes. Russ Landacre came down from the mayor's office where he holds forth as night radio-man first class. "If it's a panther, I'll bet it got loose from a circus."

"Shoot no", Sterling said. "I would say that it is migrating and came in from the Canadian Rockies. Those big cats like to roam around."

The rough box was made twice are like the lion's, big and flat.

Leo remarked about the feet.
"Old Timers say that you could hear a panther stomping for miles in the night." His head is truly a work of art and I was reminded of William Blake and his rhapsody over the tiger in the forest of the night. The eyes, which did burn bright, just as bright as the poet said, were deep set and reminded me an awful lot of Eartha Kitt, the singing girl. He stomped about the cage for a while, stopping to reach out at the wire, and then, as if resigning himself to his fate, he stretched out comfortably and looked us all in the eye. I took the hint and went home.

Very truly yours,

"Shoot no", Sterling said. "I would say that it is migrating and came in from the Canadian Rockies. Those big cats like to roam around."

The rough box was made twice as rough with the carpentry of Leo and Sterling. "For gosh sakes don't say we built that thing", Sterling pleaded. The wire was stretched across the top and nailed down, leaving one end open as the door for the big cat to go through.

Then came the crucial moment in Operation Panther. The crate was brought in. The trap door end was pushed up against the opening of our rough box cage. Ed showed the fellows how the trap door slide was held and there was some hammering for a minute and the board was withdrawn. I took a step or two up the jail stairs while Ed Buck grabbed a broom and started punching at the captive cat through an air hole.

I heard a noise like a locomotive taking up steam and saw a blue streak that turned out to be our caged guest. He hit the end of the rough box with a resounding thud as if he didn't know there was an end in it, and he turned tail and came back toward the opening. I took another step up the stairs and the strong men below put their shoulders to the box to make sure it didn't lose contact with the cage and turn a monster loose into the sleeping town. He hit the end of the rough box with a resounding thud as if he didn't know there was an end in it, and he turned tail and came back toward the opening. I took another step up the stairs and the strong men below put their shoulders to the box to make sure it didn't lose contact with the cage and turn a monster loose into the sleeping town. Their strength held and Ed poked with his broom a few more times and the big cat came into the open and sat there on his haunches testing the tensile strength of steel wire mesh.

The cat closed his eyes once and the fellows hauled back the cage, jerked the wire over the opening and started pounding in the nails. The cat was beside himself with fear or anger and Russ Landacre told us what to do.

RUSS KNOWS HOW

"He's afraid of the light. Put something over the wire and he'll quit trying to tear the place down. I have the very thing."

He went into the mayor's office and came out with an old rug, draped it over the opening of the end of the rough box and you'd think that Russ had spent his earlier days with Frank Buck instead of Ed, although there's really not much difference. The bad old tom became a nice little kitty and there wasn't a peep out of him, she or it.

We put the rough box cage on the truck and brought the one-cat menagerie to the front of the city hall and stowed the guest away for the remaining three hours of the night in the fire department room. There I got a good look at him.

He is about the most streamlined piece of creation I have ever seen. I would say he would measure about eight feet from tip of nose to tip of tail. It's feet

Now's the time to reserve your winter comfort

● When you get your reserve for a big football game, you know you've reserved your winter comfort, and we'll take care of it; our fuel will bring winter comfort right to your door.

Our job in America's competitive market is to see that no one in this city is "left out in the cold." Our advanced system helps us do this job. We'll tell you all about it. You can get off in continuous heating comfort for your family—all winter long.

are like the lion's, big and flat. Leo remarked about the feet. "Old Timers say that you could hear a panther stomping for miles in the night." His head is truly a work of art and I was reminded of William Blake and his rhapsody over the tiger in the forest of the night. The eyes, which did burn bright, just as bright as the poet said, were deep set and reminded me an awful lot of Eartha Kitt, the singing girl. He stomped about the cage for a while, stopping to reach out at the wire, and then, as if resigning himself to his fate, he stretched out comfortably and looked us all in the eye. I took the hint and went home.

Very truly yours,

—o—(Ed Note—Our native caution and the rumors that could not be verified in time caused us to put a big question mark at the bottom of last week's panther story. Since that story was written we have heard several versions of how the panther came to Kennison. The one I like best is that an unnamed doctor in the southern part of the state had made arrangements some time ago for hunters in New Mexico to ship him the first panther they were able to trap alive. He in turn was going to make a present of it to Cal Price. In the meantime Cal passed away but the order was never cancelled. Finally the panther, or puma, was caught and sent to the Doc. Not having any particular need for a panther he gladly let some enterprising Nicholas County practical jokers have the animal and the rest you know. A great deal of this story is purely surmise but one day soon the true story will be known.)

Scores Visit Jour During Newspaper

Last week was a busy one at the Journal office. It was usual that is. For our regular business, printing, we had the playing hosts to many visitors to our shop.

On Monday night the Rotary Club visited the Journal office in a bid to learn more about the work of the paper. Many of the years of business experience behind them, experts at the amount of work and complicated it took to publish.

On Thursday morning the Journalism class of Green Bank High School visited our office. Under the supervision of their teacher, Patsy Fields, this group showed interest in the working of the Journal. These boys and girls got a taste of it by visiting the printing plant and the Post Office. Pictures of these young people were found elsewhere. There are bound to be many more standing future contributors to this group.

On Thursday afternoon a happy time experienced by the members of our paper. Practice classes, Shiffler and Miller of Marlinton High School were the largest group to be seen in watching the round. As we discussed the past week from Jessup, we then visited friends and family.

Grady Moore Named As New Red Cross Chairman

At a meeting held in the Court House last Sunday afternoon it was decided to reorganize the Pocahontas County Chapter of the Red Cross.

Nearly 50 persons from all sections of the county attended the meeting and, after nearly two hours of discussion, voted to elect new officers, with the following result:

Chairman, Grady K. Moore; Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Rexrode; Treasurer, E. C. Daetwyler; Vice-chairman for Green Bank District, H. J. Widney, Jr; Vice-chairman for Huntersville District, Walter Avery; Vice-chairman for Edray District, Mrs. Helen Brumagin; and Vice-Chairman for Little Levels District, Mrs. Wilda Chappell. Miss Kitty Wiseman volunteered to act as the County Chairman for Blood Program.

A board of Directors, composed of persons from each magisterial district will be appointed soon by these elected officers. Chairmen for the various services will also be named soon.

Green Bank Homecoming Set For Saturday, Oct. 26

Miss Connie Hamrick, popular senior at Green Bank High School will be crowned Homecoming Queen by County School Superintendent Mack Brooks in ceremonies to be held during the half-time of the game with Cowen High School, October 26, on the local field. Donald Waybright, outstanding defensive halfback on the Golden Eagle team, will be crowned king. He is an excellent student and is very popular among his classmates.

Members of the court will include maid-of-honor, Gwennie Blackhurst, a senior of Green Bank, who will be escorted by Kermit Nottingham, also a senior. The juniors will be represented by Doris Lambert escorted by Charles Matheny. Representing the sophomore and freshman class will be Mary Sheets and Jewel Circosta whose escorts will be Ricky Hedrick and James Prater.

Each class in the grade school will be represented by two attendants for the coronation. They are: Nadine Gillispie and Jimmy Jordan, eighth grade; Helen Moore and Lee Kimberling, seventh grade; Tommy Grimes and Millie McLaughlin, sixth grade; Ronnie Ervin and Delores Murphy, fifth grade; Roger Wolfe and Berverly Galford, fourth grade; Neil Snyder and Eugene Waybright, third grade; Larry Wooddell and Diana Ervine, second grade; Donna Matheny and Lacy Pugh, crown bearers.

The court will be featured in a parade headed by the Golden Eagle Band under the direction of Margaret Laneve.

This year will mark the 25th anniversary of the class of '33. All members of this class are asked to make a special effort to attend the homecoming.

T-B ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Pocahontas county T-B Association will be held in the Board of Education office Monday night, October 21 at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

These pictures were taken during the recent "open house" at the Journal office in observance of National Newspaper Week. The group shown is part of the Journalism Class of Green Bank High School under the leadership of Miss Patsy Fields.

The top photo clearly shows the keen interest displayed by these boys and girls in the operation of our Linotype, which is being put through its paces by Don Cutlip.

In the second picture can be seen another Journal employee, Roy Gibson, as he shows off our "push button" job press. This machine, known in the trade as a Kelly "B", automatically feeds, delivers and jogs sheets up to 17x22 inches in size. This type of press is used for high grade printing of office forms, folders, booklets and the like. That's ye editor on the far side of the press explaining some of the fine points to the class.

For future reference of these students these pictures are being printed from plastic engravings made by the Fairchild electronic process. The photos were taken by Ted McElwee.
